NEWS of the WEEK

A TRIBUTE

On Thursday, May the seventh, in the early hours of dawn, Mrs. Harriet L., widow of the late Dr. John A. Twaddle and life long resident of Bethel, passed on to the higher life.

She was born in this town eighty years ago and came of sturdy New England stock. Fifty-eight years ago this month she became the bride of Dr. Twaddle and since that time has lived in the village, fifty-five years having been spent in her late home on Church Street. To them were born three children, Eva, wife of Dr. O. H. Brann of Augusta, Widd, a practicing physician in town, who has given her his loyal devotion during her widowhood; and Gard, a prominent physician and surgeon, residing in Auburn.

She was a Christian woman of simple tastes, democratic, and one of the old school. Her life was ruled by devotion to her family. The sudden death of her husband, eighteen years ago, brought to her a tragedy from which she never wholly recovered. Thelrs was a companionship the gods must have envied and the thought of the resumption of it must have made death the sweetest of reunions.

Her friendly interest in others and her back home hospitality won for her innumerable friends. She was loved for her neighborliness and her home life was one of true devotion and loyalty. She was surrounded by loving neighbors whose devotion to her in her declining years has been a source of great happiness to her and to her children. The closing years of her life were clouded with great physical suffering which she bore with Spartan courage, but in spite of constant discomfort she would greet all with a smile of good cheer. She was a great reader and took a keen interest in current affairs of state and nation. She was a member of the Congregational Church and took an active part in its affairs in her younger years, and was always a regular attendant until failing health overtook her.

She was a great lover of flowers and her many kindly neighbors and friends were so generous with their offerings that there was scarcely a day in the year that she did not have blooms in her home. Her memory will not soon depart from those who loved her.

In many a home in this community there is felt today a poignant sorrow because the gallant spirit of this woman has been stilled, and her children will treasure the blessed legacy of memory of happy years.

She was laid to rest beside her late husband in Riverside Cemetery following simple but impressive services at the home where many came to pay their last tribute to a neighbor and friend. Beautiful flowers which she loved were in profusion about the house and expressed the love of her friends. All who knew her will she will be missed and mourned by the family in their sorrow and many.

The beautiful things in this life are manifold 'tis true,
We count the stars by the thousands,
The birds and the flowers, too.
The sunsets and the dawnings,
Rare beauties far and near,
But all the wide world over There's just one mother dear."

CLINIC POSTPONED

The pre-school clinic which was planned for May 20 at Bryant Pond to be sponsored by the Farm Bureau, has been postponed for the present. Due to the epidemic of measles, it seems advisable at this time not to have this clinic.

A notice of the change in date will be sent to this paper before the clinic is held.

COMMENCEMENT RECEPTION TO BE HELD ON EVENING OF GOULD CENTENNIAL

The various committees of the Senior class, trustees and alumni of Gould Academy are working at top speed perfecting plans for the Centennial Reunion to be held on Commencement day, June 4. Latest plans call for the rescue of the annual Senior Reception from the oblivion to which it had been temporarily consigned, and in connection with it an illumination of the campus that will encourage returning alumnae to stroll about the grounds meeting old friends.

As previously announced, the Centennial exercises will be held in a huge tent to be erected on the athletic field. Men of prominence in the state and nation, including among others Governor Brann and Commissioner of Education Bertram Packard, will speak after the Alumni banquet in the tent. The Rumford band will lead the march to the tent and will give a concert outside either during or after the exercises.

Plans are now being made on the basis of a minimum attendance of 400 at the banquet, though it is confidently expected that many more will be present preparing for this.

SPRING BRINGS BULLETIN ON BETTER HOME GROUNDS

In response to hundreds of requests from home owners, both on farms and in Maine cities and villages, the Extension Service of the Maine College of Agriculture now offers a bulletin on Better Home Grounds. The illustrated, 40-page publication was prepared by Albert D. Nutting, forestry specialist in the Extension Service. Mr. Nutting is also in charge of the Extension better home grounds project in which several hundred Maine home owners are enrolled.

Beginning with a discussion of fundamentals of good design, the bulletin gives valuable information on building and maintaining lawns and on the control of pests in lawns. Trees, essential to every complete home, are carefully considered, with information as to the characteristics of varieties suited to Maine. A table on shrubs lists the common and trade names of useful shrubs, their season, color, height, distinctive features and adaption to Maine.

Hedges, vines, flowers, rock gardens, and planting instructions are explained in the closing pages.

Copies of this bulletin on Better

Home Grounds are available from the Extension Service, Orono, Maine. Ask for Bulletin No 219, Better Home Grounds."

BRIGHT SPOT IN RECOVERY

One of the best bright spots in the American horizon today is life insurance.
Not only has this institution weathered the depression far better than the unconsolidated element among business leaders with the record but it has emerged from the last few years in even better financial shape than it had reached a few off-time.
Its total premium income today exceeds even that of the boom period and the total face value of all life insurance in force is equivalent to one-fourth the estimated
wealth.

Three hundred billions of dollars
of life insurance in force, twenty-three billions of dollars of assets of the companies, three billion in annual payments to beneficiaries and policyholders -- these are figures that stagger the imagination of everyone but a statistician or a financier. But they assume particular significance in connection with Life Insurance Week, which is being observed throughout the United States this year, May 11-16.

Who owns this vast accumulation of assets? Average people for the most part, people of small or very modest means, sixty-three million of them in all. And back of every policy owned by this vast number of Americans is the whole fabric of American business, for the funds paid into the insurance companies are invested in Federal, state and municipal bonds, in highly selective industrial and railroad securities, in mortgages upon the nation's huge wealth, real estate. The policyholders of the country are the owners in American business.

Therefore, Life Insurance Week
this year is more than an observance. It is a celebration of a cooperation which has been steadily growing, and it is a forerunner of a continued and more growth of a great public service institution.

MANY FRUITS CAN BE HAIRED IN THE COUNTY

For I see no fruits on the trees! Many women who have been asking themselves this question will be interested in knowing that the answer is "yes."

A variety of fruit is being raised on farms and gardens at the present time. Mrs. Alfred Andrews of West Paris raises raspberries, the famous strawberries, gooseberries, plums and cherries. Besides apples there are other fruits such as the family has a large variety of pears, grapes and some exotic fruits, including the star fruit, which is a native fruit of the Philippines.
There are also many varieties of fruit trees and shrubs, including the peach, plum, apricot, cherry, apple, pear, peach, nectarine, etc.,
which are raised here.

Now, what kind of fruit can be raised in the county? Many varieties of fruit can be raised here, including the peach, plum,

Each passing week brings a little more order out of the political chaos, as the two great parties grid their loins, summon their cohorts and prepare for their quadrennial battle.

Practically all preliminary interest is naturally centered on the Republican convention to be held next month in Cleveland. The Democratic convention is also to be held next month, in Philadelphia. Roosevelt will be Senator Steiner but it takes no one to guess what of Oregon, a middle of the road will happen there. The delegates are usually called a "wild pro-will nominate Franklin Delano Roosevelt." Senator Steiner has been re-elected for the presidency, and outspoken in criticism of many New Deal measures. It is conceivable that more "real" polities, but his Congressmen and ballot will be required of record shows he voted for many thereafter they will settle down to them, including the NRA and the NRA.

Indication of what is to come is found in the selection of the keynoter and chairman of the coming Republican convention. Chairman will be old-guard Congressman

Snell of New York, a representative of the most conservative wing of the party. Mr. Snell's congressional record shows that he has opposed practically every New Deal measure.

Business Week says that recently observed factors reinforce the belief that the second quarter business volume will be best since at least the middle of 1931, that manufacturing activity will be tops since 1930. Earnings as well as volume and activity, are likewise showing highly encouraging upward trends.

The extremely conservative "Annual" foresees that business improvement will continue throughout the second quarter, and in this is seconded by other financial and in-ustrial periodicals. The Annual adds that "on the basis of economic factors alone the logical expectation would be two or three years of general active conditions. But the presence of artificial elements suggests the likelihood of intervening peaks and valleys, the timing of which cannot be readily foreseen."

With regard to the outstanding one of the artificial elements in the veterans' bonus, which is believed to have a strong influence in stimulating business, particularly business whose products are sold on the time payment plan automobiles, kitchen appliances, real estate, etc. Numerous throughout the country have widely advertised plan whereby veterans can buy now pay later when they get their home loans.

In spite of that, bank conditions seem favorable to continuation of business betterment. Whole loan rates have been held to a stable level. There is a vast unfilled market for all manner of goods and services. Heavy industry is seeking interest rates are very low and due to large of money

The Printing Press
and Prosperity

By RAYMOND PITCAIRN
*National Chairman
Sentinels of the Republic*

Since its first beginnings the Printing Press has been recognized as a prosperity-builder, as well as a contributor to human happiness and understanding.

It has aided our national well-being in many ways. By spreading knowledge of new ideas and new products, by telling the producer how his goods may be improved and the consumer where they may be obtained, it has brought about the wide interchange of ideas and products which is the basis of all progress
and prosperity.

For the worker it has boosted the purchasing power of wages by lowering the cost of what he buys. For the seller it has increased profits, as at reduced prices, by greatly expanding his market.

Those are the wealth-creating powers of the Printing Press, which it engaged in its normal functions.

But there are theorists who advocate use of the Printing Press as a prosperity-builder in quite a different way.

They want to use it to create money, instead of wealth.

They seek to encourage the belief that if the presses at Washington simply print a lot more dollar bills without additional reserves to ensure their value, everybody can be rich. They ignore the teaching of experience -- that reckless currency inflation boosts all prices, and thereby lowers the purchasing value of every pay envelope.

The two uses should not be confi-fused.

Behind the output of the press which prints our newspapers, our books, our magazines and our advertisements is all the productive strength of the country. History has proved this.

Behind the output of the press
which prints recklessly inflated currency is a misleading theory which breeds bitter disappointment. History has proved that, too.

PLAN MADE MORE
SIMPLE BY NEW RULING

K. Gardner, specialist in soil conservation, announced this week minor changes in the rulings under which the conservation program will be administered. Pointing out that the changes in no way interfere with the major objectives of the program, Gardner said that some modifications must be made as the program gets underway. By spreading new ideas and increasing the producer's income and they may be thought about the teaching of ideas and programs of all programs.

It has boosted the program more easily understood by farmers. Crops were originally classified as soil building, conserving, or soil depleting. The new ruling abolishes the classification 'soil building' crops, crops formerly in this group been included with the soil conserving, making only two classifications—soil conserving and soil depleting.

Crop land, formerly defined as tillable land from which at one crop other than wild hay been removed since January 1, now includes land in orchards and vineyards which had not yet bearing age by January 1.

This change provides that those who fall short of the minimum acreage of soil conserving land will be eligible for some payment. To qualify for the full building payment, a farmer still have at least fifteen acres of conserving crops for every acre in his soil depleting land. When first announced, the program would have made ineligible for payment any farmer who just under the requirement.

Under the new ruling, partial payment may be made to those who fall short of the required acreage. 15% is now a requirement for payment; formerly it was a requirement for any payment. Deductions will be made for each acre of the 15% requirement.

A fourth modification of particular interest to vegetable growers allows them to qualify for bigger building payments. Land which has been in vegetable crops then has been planted to winter crops which are turned under between January 1, 1936 and October 1, 1936, may be counted in the conserving acreage of the farm, thus allowing larger soil building payments, for the maximum amount these payments is fixed by the acreage of soil conserving crops.

A final change, necessary to meet against a few who might try to evade the spirit of the program, gives the Secretary of Agriculture power to withhold payments from any farmer who has failed in 1936 in a way to defeat aims of the program. According to H. R. Tolley, acting administrator of the AAA, this will apply to very few farmers."

THE STORY

CHAPTER I.—The Duke, a pleasant, likable youth of twenty-three, had broken his heart, entered an unoccupied summer home in Southampton, seeking shelter from a terrific rain storm. He makes himself at home. Two years ago his father had died in New York, leaving the boy, Barry Gilbert, eight years old. Barry Gilbert, right, he was back to the States. He did not recollect ever having had a mother. Drowsing at the fire-side, he was startled by the arrival of a butler, Willets, a chauffeur, Evans; a cook and a maid. He learns that the son of the owner of the house, Jack Hambridge, whom the servants had never seen, is expected. He decides to bluff him out. His supposed parents have given him German Next English as his alias. After dinner, from his mother's room, he opens it and finds a message from the real Jack, saying he could not come and returning hundred-dollar bill. The boy's father had planned him into obscurity. Barry pocketed the money, intending to return it later. He orders Evans to take him to Montauk, intending to disappear there. On the way he assists Judge Hambridge and his daughter, Patricia, whose car had broken down. Believing he is Jack Gilbert, she invites him to dinner the following Thursday.

CHAPTER II.—Barry returns to Southampton, deciding to stay a bit longer. Mr. Riddell, through his newspaper, the Globe, accuses Judge Hambridge of taking orders from Tammany Hall in a condemnation proceeding. Barry meets Peter Winslow, prominent attorney. Winslow tells Barry that Judge Hambridge had been identified as the man who was killed by a taxicab. At home Barry finds the wife of the real Jack Gilbert awaiting him. Her husband is in jail in New York, charged with the murder of Mike Kelly, Tammany boss.

CHAPTER III.—The girl, Peggy, tells Barry how she had met Jack in Florida and married him, as Jay Rogers. Jack lost his job, and they went to New York, where they got work at the garment trade. There Barry was accused of trying to pick the pocket of Mike Kelly, and was arrested. Her husband went to Kelly's to induce him to drop the charge. Later Kelly was found dead, his skull crushed by a deranged. Barry suggests he can help an Jack Gilbert, and Mrs. Rogers agrees. Judge Hambridge delivers a decision in the condemnation suit in which Kelly had been interested.

CHAPTER IV.—Barry cables Mrs. Riddell for $2,000. Winslow takes Rogers' case. Barry gets a job on the Globe under his true name. The editor, Denis Harwood, assigns him to cover the Kelly murder. Barry encounters theophilus, servant of Tammany Hall. Barry visits the Hambridge residence, determining that the accident occurred near the scene of the Kelly murder, where such an accident had occurred. Patricia bids him "Watch your step, Mr. Gilbert."

CHAPTER V.—Barry, on Winslow's advice, advertises for witnesses to the fatal accident which occurred near the scene of the Kelly murder, having the taxi driver who had had the murderer or a fare night respond. Rogers is notified.

"I must see Pat at once," Barry thought. What was he going to say to her six days before, she had given him a pretty plain warning to keep out of this. Barry no longer had any doubt of that. He had decided to do so, and then Willets had reminded him that gentlemen didn't abandon ladies in distress! Well, what was a gentleman to do? "Damn it!" he raged; "I can't blame her for wanting to protect her own father! And it doesn't make the least difference, anyway. I'd go on loving her if she'd committed the murder!"

Once more, he asked himself what right he had to assume that either Pat or the Judge had any thing to do with that murder. Pacing the floor, he reviewed all his evidence again, and reached a conclusion as to what it indicated. That brought him back to the idea of himself as Pat's ally. "If I can make her see that," he said, "she'll get to come clean, though. And she will. When I can tell her about Peggy, and make her understand that the truth will clear that boy. And then we can get together to clear the Judge. There might have been a whole lot of reasons—decent ones—for his going to Kelly's that night."

Evans phoned at ten. "I've been having dinner with Kelly's chauffeur. His name's Nolan." Evans said, "and he don't talk much. We got pretty thick tonight, though."

"Suppose we start for home at nine in the morning," Barry said. He was hungry, and tired of thinking, so he had a snack at the corner.

Precisely at nine the next morning, he called Pat and told her he was coming. "Something important's happened," he said.

"Why not lunch with us?" Pat suggested.

"We're lucky if we get out by two," Barry told her. "And anyway, I want to see you alone."

"I'll expect you at two," she said. Evans was waiting, and full of his evening with Nolan. "I didn't dare ask a question," Evans reported. "He's the suspicious kind. I think he drinks, though, and a fellow that drinks is bound to loosen up some day."

"Buy him all he can hold," Barry counseled.

Conversation lapsed after that. Evans' passenger was rehearsing his part of the coming interview. "I'll bet she knows now what it's about," he speculated.

And she did.

"Come in," Pat invited, leading the way to the drawing room.

Pat indicated a chair. "Sit there," she bade him. "It's awfully warm for June."

"Pat—" he began, still standing. "I've stumbled on something."

"So I gathered," she observed. "And I assume that it has to do with your pet murder."

"It has to do with your father."

She smiled.

"I suppose you've discovered that he killed Kelly."

"I've discovered that he called on Kelly that night."

"Wonderful!" Pat mocked. "Who told you that?"

"The taxi man who drove him downtown."

Barry related his adventure with the oriental mollie.

Pat listened almost indifferently.

"It was sheer chance," Barry concluded. "I hadn't any idea of implicating your father. But now he is implicated. You must see that."

"I don't—unless you insist on dragging him into it."

"I insist on nothing, Pat—except clearing an innocent man."

"At the expense of one equally innocent."

"What does your father stand to gain by telling the truth? We know now that Kelly was alive when Rogers left the house. I'm just as sure that he was alive when the Judge left. But he must have been killed soon afterward. We've got to find out who killed him."

"Why?"

"Because now we've two men to clear."

"If my father saw Kelly after the day left."

"That's where Rogers."

"And puts it up to my father."

"Your father didn't kill Kelly,"

Barry said. "I know that, and I know why he went to that house."

"Really?"

"He went to protest against closing that Jefferson street decision."

"And then fled it."

"He had to. The pressure was too strong for him. He'd been struggling against it for weeks. In politics even honest men have to listen to reason sometimes. Your father had to."

"How interesting!"

"In spite of the hullabaloo, he wrote the deviation. And that day, came the bitterest onslaught of all. The tide had a direct accusation.

Your father was frantic. Just before midnight, he telephoned Kelly from the telephone shop, and went straight to Sixteenth street."

"He told Kelly this verdict would ruin him. Might ruin everybody. For more than an hour, he pleaded and argued. No use. Kelly was adamant. Your father gave up at two o'clock, left Kelly—alive—and filed his decision next morning, before anyone knew that Kelly was no longer alive. That's the truth, isn't it?"

"So plausible that telling it publicly would probably end my father's career."

"And so?"

"And so I think we'd better forget it."

"You mean that, to continue your father's career, you'd let this boy go to the gallows?"

"Of course, I don't."

She turned to him, the hardness gone out of her voice.

"There's no chance of that, and you know it."

"There's always a chance."

"We'll face that when we come to it."

"We've got to face it now, Pat."

"Why?" she pleaded. And then, passionately: "What right have you to demand that we do anything? You don't even know this boy."

"I do."

"Since just—"

"And you know him. He's the real John Clarke Ridder."

That gave her pause.

"Whoever he is, he's got a wife and a baby. I can't risk his life to save you, or myself."

"If he's convicted—" Pat began.

"I won't have him go through that. If the Judge doesn't tell the truth now, I will."

Pat's mouth became a straight, hard line.

"And who'll believe you?" she asked.

"I can prove—"

"Who'll take the word of a bribed taxi-driver and a branded adventurer?"

"Listen, Pat—"

"You listen. I've warned you to stop prying into our affairs. You went right on. And now you—the scum of the earth!"

She was losing her head.

"Now you come into my house with a story vilifying my father and threaten to tell it if I don't. My reply to that is: Go ahead! And, an hour after you do, you'll be arrested for robbing the mails!"

They stood facing each other.

"That letter you opened before Willets—the letter with the hundred dollar bill—that wasn't addressed to Barry Gilbert, was it?"

"No."

Pat crossed the room.

"I'm sorry," she said, "but you asked for it."

"I did, but I can't take your answer. I can't because—God help me—Pat—I'm in love with you!"

She gave no sign of hearing.

"I'm an adventurer," he went on, "and you're a lady. The real eat I ever met. That's why you can't do this."

No answer.

"I couldn't," Harry continued, "and I'm a fake gentleman. I wanted to drop the whole business. I told Willets that after you'd warned me last Friday. And Willets said, 'That isn't done. A gentleman's got certain responsibilities.' He has. That's a tradition stronger than we are."

Pat turned, at last.

"This is funny," she said. "You—"

"It is funny," he cut her short. "I'd like to behave like a loafer, and I can't. I'm willing to go to jail to save this boy—and I'm the scum of the earth. You're a lady. How about you?"

"If it were only me—" she broke.

"Your father's a gentleman. How about him?"

Before she could reply, the double doors opened.

Judge Hambridge was standing there—erect and soldier-like.

"Mr. Gilbert's right, Pat," he said. "If I release you from your promise to me, I can't go through with it. I'm too tired, and full of self-loathing."

He turned squarely to Barry.

"You're right about everything. About my going to Kelly that night, and the reason I went. He let me in himself. We quarreled violently. So violently that he took a revolver out of his desk drawer and kept it in his hand. Then I walked out of the house. But you were wrong about just one thing. Mr. Gilbert. I left the house at two o'clock, but when I left it, Kelly wasn't alive."

GOULD 5—NORWAY 6

Three errors and two hits in the third inning spelled defeat for Gould last Saturday when Norway again won a one run victory. Behind 6-0 in the sixth inning Gould staged a rally scoring one in the sixth, two in the 7th and two in the 8th. The tying and winning runs were on base when the final out was made in both the 8th and 9th innings. Parker Brown's single in the 7th scoring two runs was a nice job of pinch hitting.

Whitman started on the mound for Gould and might have lasted but for errors although he was hit quite solidly. Bob Browne robbed two Norway men of extra base hits by nice catches way on top of the bank in left center field.

Lefty Keniston relieved Whitman in the fifth and did a great job allowing only three hits in the four and two-thirds innings on the mound. Only three men faced him in each of the 6th, 7th, and 8th innings.

Browne hit a triple in the sixth and scored Gould's first run as Quimby was being thrown out at first. Eddy Robertson with two hits led the attack for the losers. Frost and Verenis got two hits each for Norway.

Whereas Charles H. Brown, then of Upton, County of Oxford, State of Maine, now deceased, by his mortgage deed dated October 8, 1930, recorded in Oxford County Registry of Deeds, Book 402, Page 126, conveyed to James Barnett, of said Upton, a certain parcel of land situated in said Upton, and bounded and described as follows: northerly by land then of Henry Enman; easterly by Back Street Road, so called; southerly by the fsgood Godwin lot, so known; westerly by land then supposed to be owned by Persis Allie Peasee. Said parcel containing fifty acres, more or less, and being the same parcel bounded in deed of Villa M. West to said Brown, dated August 6, 1896, recorded in said Registry, Book 201, page 223.

And also another parcel of land situated in said Upton, containing twenty-three acres, more or less, and being the same parcel described in deed of Alva M. Coolidge to said Brown dated November 27, 1902, recorded in said Registry, Book 309, Page 599, and bounded as follows: beginning at a stake marked as a corner with a cross; east corner of land formerly of George H. Haywood; thence running easterly along the northerly line of W. Swatt's farm so formerly known, ninety rods; thence northerly fifty-four rods to a post marked as a corner with a cross; thence westerly along an old stone wall sixty-two rods to a post marked as a corner with a cross; thence southerly along an old stone wall forty-one rods to the point of beginning.

And whereas the condition of said mortgage has been broken, now therefore, by reason of the breach of the conditions thereof, I the undersigned James Barnett, claim a foreclosure of said mortgage. Dated April 29, 1936. JAMES BARNETT

NOTICE OF FORECLOSURE

Whereas, Charles H. Brown, late of Upton, County of Oxford, State of Maine, now deceased, by his mortgage deed dated August 14, 1917, recorded in Oxford County Registry of Deeds, Book 334, Page 475, conveyed to J. O. Douglass, Treasurer of the School Fund of said Upton, or his successor in office, a certain parcel of land situated in said Upton, and bounded and described as follows:

Beginning at the southeast corner of the farm then owned by Henry Enman on the west side of the so-called back street road; thence running southerly along the west side of said road about seventy-five rods to the north line of land then owned by P. J. West; thence westerly along said north line to a point far enough from said road to include fifty acres by running a line northerly and parallel with the first line to the south line of said Henry Enman farm; thence along said south line to point of beginning. Said bounded parcel being sometimes known as the Warren Ballard farm and being the same conveyed to said Charles H. Brown by Lydia Fernald and others by deed dated August 6, 1896, recorded in said Registry, Book 261, Page 323; which mortgage was thereafterwards assigned by said J. O. Douglass, Treasurer of said School Fund to James H. McLeod who was the assignee owner of the same at the time of his decease and which said mortgage was assigned by Lila C. Barnett, executrix of the estate of said James H. McLeod, to Ian D. Barnett by assignment recorded in Oxford County Registry of Deeds, Book 372, Page 248, and by said Ian D. Barnett assigned to the undersigned James Barnett by assignment recorded in said Registry Book 359, Page 367, who is now the assignee owner of said mortgage; and whereas the condition of said mortgage has been broken; now, therefore, by reason of the breach of the condition thereof, the said Howard V. Douglass in his capacity aforesaid, claims a foreclosure of said mortgage. Dated April 28, 1936.

HOWARD V. DOUGLASS,
Treasurer of said Upton School Fund and successor of said J. O. Douglass in said office.

WILDLIFE CONSERVATION MOVEMENT GROWING

Interest in the Maine Wildlife Federation is becoming widespread throughout the State, according to Senator Harold F. Schnurle temporary president of the organization which was formed at Orono recently.

"I am getting reports from practically every county that plans are being discussed for a unification of wildlife interests along the lines proposed at Orono," Senator Schnurle said.

"It is apparent that Maine people are becoming conscious of the need for conservation and restoration of wildlife. This is especially true among sportsmen who realize that the day may come when our game supply will be so depleted that hunting will be a matter of a few week's open season and greatly restricted bag limits," he added.

"The purpose of the Maine Wildlife Federation is to prevent this condition in Maine, if possible. Unwise legislation and the lack of a strong organization to represent the interests of sportsmen and other lovers of wildlife have been the underlying causes of most of our present difficulties," Schnurle pointed out.

"There has been no medium through which these thousands of people could consolidate their voices into a single roar that would get action when it was necessary to fight unwanted legislation or support that which was good."

"The Maine Wildlife Federation will supply that medium and give every sportsman and wildlife lover an opportunity to have a voice in the conservation and restoration of Maine wildlife."

"The proposed setup of the federation provides for the formation of county groups to include all existing clubs or associations, and individuals interested in any phase of wildlife conservation and restoration.

"These county groups would be further unified by combining into sectional units, the latter being combined into a state-wide organization as outlined at Orono.

"None of the smaller groups that affiliated with the county organizations would lose their identity, would become a part of the county however," Mr. Schnurle said. They and State Federations through representation by members appointed or elected to the parent groups.

"It is my understanding," he continued, "that the Cumberland County Fish and Game Association is going to undertake the job of consolidating the interested groups in that section. Other sportsmen's organizations throughout the State will undoubtedly follow suit."

GREENWOOD CENTER

At the recent Rhode Island Baby Chick Show, Maine entries carried a placard "100% pullorum clean, of course." Although the flocks kept more than half of the Maine exhibitors away, three Maine breeders made excellent showings.

The first Apple Blossom Day in York Harbor will be arranged this year at the Quaker Hill orchard in North Brook. The event is sponsored by the Sanford Kiwanis Club.

"Mortals and Immortals" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ on Sunday, May 17.

The Golden Text is: "What man knoweth the things of a man, save the spirit of man which is in him? even so the things of God knoweth no man, but the Spirit of God" (1 Cor. 2: 11).

Among the citations from the Bible is the following: "But now thus saith the Lord that created thee, O Jacob, Fear not: for I have redeemed thee, I have called thee by name; thou art mine. Even every one that is called by my name: for I have created him for my glory, I have formed him; yea, I have made him" (Isaiah 43: 1, 7).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science Textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "In Science man is the offspring of Spirit. The beautiful, good, and pure constitute his ancestry. Spirit is his primitive and ultimate source of being; God is his Father, and Life is the law of his being. In Science, man's immortality depends upon that of God, good, and follows as a necessary consequence of the immortality of good" (Page 63: 5-6, 9-11, and Page 81: 28-30).
